FIESTA FLAMENCA

A GUIDE TO THE ART AND HISTORY OF FLAMENCO

WHO ARE WE?

Flamenco Vivo Carlota Santana Spanish Dance Company is committed to the mission of breaking boundaries between cultures using the universal spirit of flamenco. Carlota Santana and Roberto Lorca founded the company in 1983 with the vision of creating a format whereby new Spanish dance and music could be created and developed. After Mr. Lorca's untimely death, Ms. Santana took over artistic direction of the company. Under Ms. Santana's direction, the company has expanded its repertoire by presenting new music, dramatic works and a mixture of various dance vocabularies, as well as by integrating Hispanic-American influences. Ms. Santana has also created the company's innovative Arts Education program, integrating Spanish dance and culture with the school curriculum, and has traveled widely implementing this program. She also uses the company as a format for developing young artists.

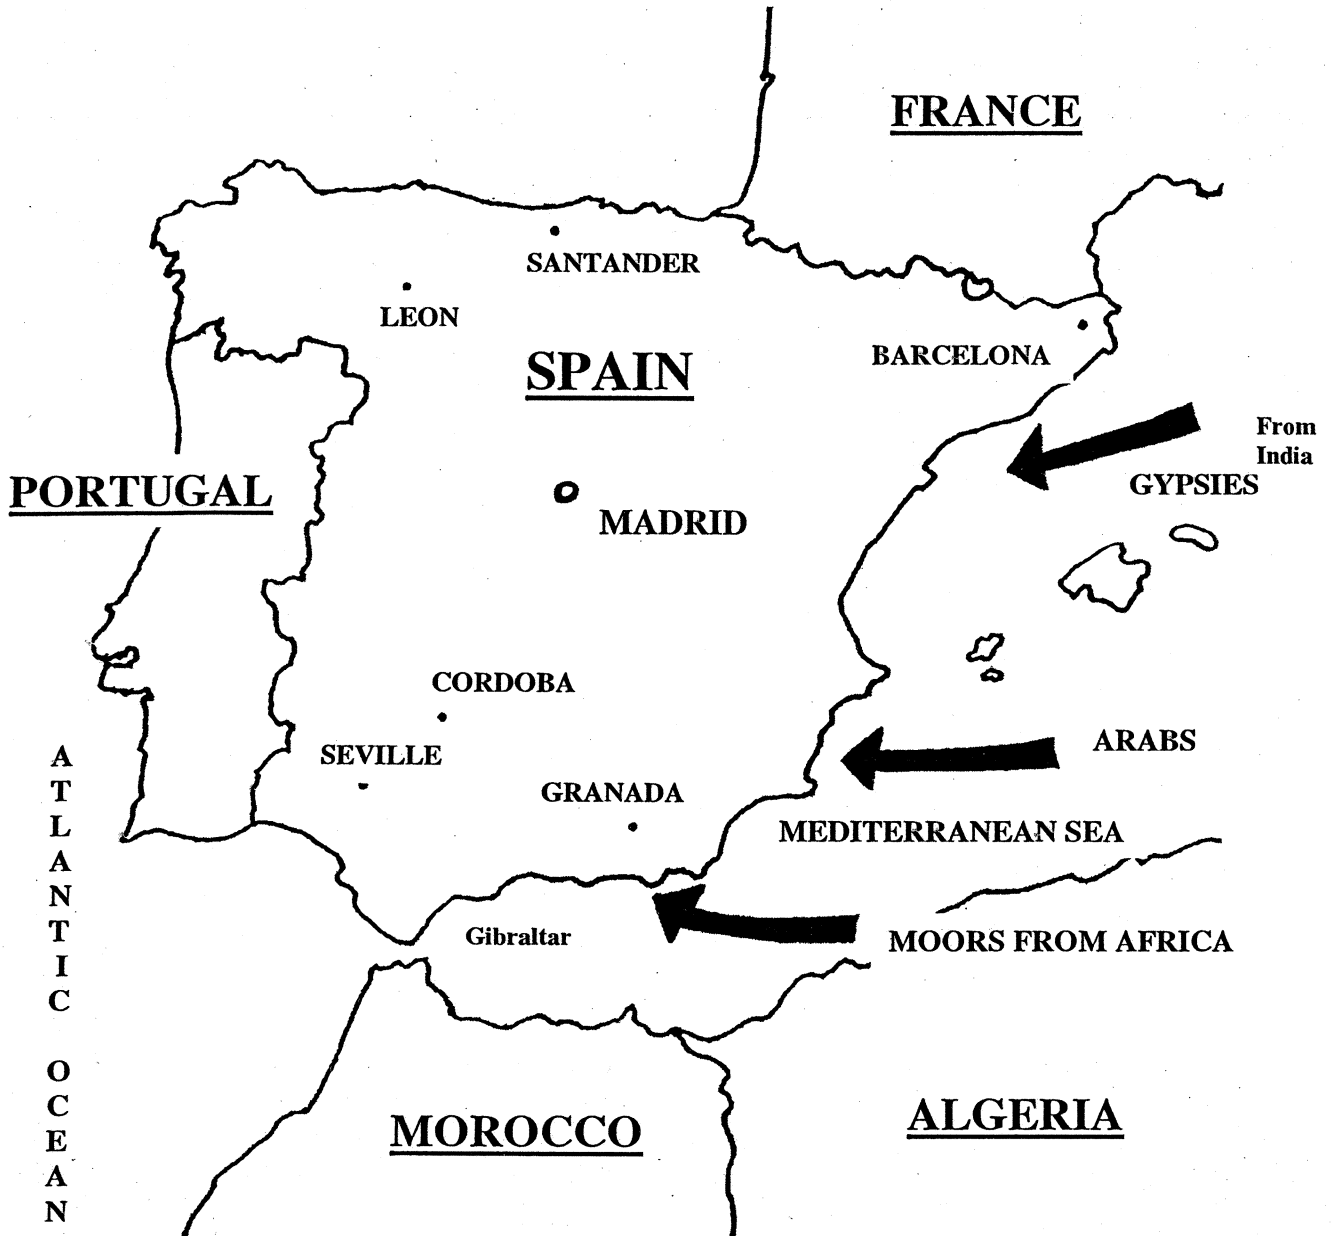

SPANISH DANCE: A TEACHER'S VIEW

Flamenco Vivo Carlota Santana uses the universal language of dance to enrich the curriculum with a multicultural approach to education. The students can learn not only solid Spanish Dance technique but the discipline and commitment inherent in learning an art form. Students use Spanish dance as a way to uncover Spanish history, language, culture and social studies.

The students learn about the development and cultural influences of Flamenco, the three elements comprising the art of Flamenco, and the music and dance technique of Flamenco. The educational advantages in learning through real life experiences are unmatched and will heighten the students' appreciation of cultural diversity in our schools and communities.

MAJOR CITIES AND CULTURAL INFLUENCES

VOCABULARY WORDS:

- Flamenco: is an art form developed in Southern Spain in the region known as Andalucia.
- Gypsies: Gypsies came from a northern region of India traveling through and settling the Middle East, North Africa and Europe in the fifteenth century. The gypsies that settled in Southern Spain uniquely combined existing musical traditions with their own. The art of Flamenco blossomed out of this rich blending of cultures. In the 1490's, the gypsies were persecuted in Spain; they were not allowed to speak their own language, hold certain kinds of jobs or wear certain kinds of clothing. The pain and passion from their relentless persecution fuels the spirit of Flamenco song. Another one of their possible contributions to the art of Flamenco is the hand movements, which is similar to Indian dance.
- Moors/Arabs: They invaded Spain from their native land in North Africa in 711 AD. They occupied Spain, particularly the South, for about 700 years. When Queen Isabella and King Ferdinand married in 1492, Spain became a Catholic state under which Moslems and all non-Catholics were persecuted. Remains of the Moors' splendid courts with their intricate wall patters, high arches and grand gardens still remain in Cordoba, Granada and Seville. The modern day Flamenco guitar is considered to be a descendent of the zither, an ancient stringed instrument introduced to Spain in the ninth century by Arab singers and musicians.
- Sephardic Jews: They were also one of the earliest groups to settle on the Iberian Peninsula. They came from the Middle East during the eleventh and thirteenth centuries. After Spain became a Catholic state, the Jews were persecuted as well. They were eventually expelled in 1492 and over 200,000 left. Some 50,000 Jews who converted to the Catholic religion were allowed to stay. One of their contributions to the art of Flamenco was the varied tone in their music and song. This is evident from the similarities between traditional Judaic vocal music and Holy Week saetas (chants of worship during Holy Week religious processions).
- Andalucian Christians: After the Inquisition, many of the indigenous populations of Christians in Andalucia banded with the persecuted Jewish, Muslim, and Gypsy cultures in uninhabited mountain regions, hiding in the wilderness and making caravans for food and provisions. Andalucian Christians added a fourth distinct culture to this blending of musical influences, contributing some of their own folkloric heritage.

THE THREE ELEMENTS OF FLAMENCO

- cante: (song). The song developed out of a need that Flamenco singers had to express pain, joy, and their life in all its colors. The singers show their deepest emotions through song. The verses (letras) are either made up by the singer on the spot or traditional songs learned from family members and teachers (maestros). Each singer has his or her own vocal quality, style, and manner of delivery.

- baile: (dance). The dancer sets the mood for the dance and helps illustrate what is being sung. The dance changes depending on the feeling of the dancer. Whether the dancer is improvising or performing choreographed moves, he or she is always striving to communicate emotion. Both men and women stand tall, showing strength, elegance, and orgullo (pride). The elaborate rhythmic patterns are made in the way the dancers move their arms, pound their feet and how they display their feelings.

- guitarra: (guitar). The guitarist is the middleman between the dancer and the singer; the weaving thread of the three elements. The guitarist must have technical virtuosity as well as an ability to spontaneously compose around the moves of the singer and dancer.

Whenever the dancer wants to go faster or slower or change the dance altogether, the dancer gives the guitarist a special signal known as a llamada (a call). The guitarist must also follow the verses (letras) and moods of the singer, knowing when to add melodic ornamentation and when to remain silent.

Components of Flamenco Performance

- jaleo: shouts of encouragement and remarks from other participants and the audience about what or how the dancer, singer and guitarist are doing. One famous jaleo is “olé” which comes from the Arabic word “Allah,” which means God.
- palmas: (hand clapping). There are two different kinds of palmas. Sordas are the muted claps and claras are high-pitched claps.
- pitos: (finger snapping).

Song Forms (palos) of Different Rhythms and Moods

- Soleares: the mood is sad, and the tempo is slow. The rhythm is 12 beats to a measure; the same rhythm as Alegrias.
- Alegrias: the mood is happy and exciting, and the tempo is upbeat. The rhythm is 12 beats to a measure; the same rhythm as Soleares.
- Tangos: can have a happy or sad feeling, in medium tempo in 4/4 rhythm.
- Rumba: has been influenced by Caribbean rhythms, giving it a lively, bouncy feeling. It is usually a happy and festive dance done in 4/4 rhythm.
- Sevillanas: (dance form from Seville). A folk dance from the town of Seville, which is done in couples. It is a fun and joyful dance.
- Seguiriya: Serious, almost tragic sounding, allowing the dancer to express sorrowful feelings. The rhythm is complex.
